TWO BELIEVED KILLED

Accident Is Fourth in Sewer Project in Milwaukee Streets This Year

By Associated Press

Milwaukee—Efforts to rescue four imprisoned sewer workers, two of whom are believed to have been buried alive here Wednesday morning, were on an all-out effort at 12:30 P. M. Two men, John Tica and Otto Cima, were rescued by doctors who gave them stimulants while rescue workers dug away at tons of debris surrounding them. John Milich and William Belton, both of Detroit, are believed to be buried somewhere beyond the other pair of workers. In the pit which is 35 feet below the street level. Crowds hampered rescue workers during the morning. At noon women in the neighborhood served lunches to rescue crews.

Fire and police lines have been established. Rescue squads say it will be several hours before any of the men are freed. Both Tica and Cima are believed to be seriously injured.

ADMINISTERED LAST RITES

A priest from St. Peter and Paul church was admitted to the shaft and administered last rites of the church to the two men who could be seen.

The cavein occurred in a new branch of a sewer system being completed by Hammen and Co. of Detroit. John Milich and William Belton, two of the imprisoned men, came here from Detroit last December.

Shortly after starting their shift the four men discovered wet gravel and water dripping over them, apparently from a break in a water main. They spent the early morning hours bracing it and had about completed their labors and were due to quit at 7 A. M. when the cavein occurred.

Work of the rescuers was hampered by the narrowness of the cut leading to the sewer shaft. This was the fourth accident in the sewerage project. Five were killed at one time in one pit, three in another cavein and one other killed and a half a dozen hurt in a similar collapse.

In the confusion attending rescue work one of the rescue squad was overcome and rushed to a hospital. A report that two of the men were rescued was circulated but this was later found to be erroneous. It was said that all four men probably would be found dead in the pit when the rescue squad reached them.

OSKOSH MEDIC TAKES OWN LIFE

Former Assistant to Northern Hospital Head Suicides After Dismissal

By Associated Press

Oshkosh—Dr. Louis Bickford who until recently was employed as assistant to Dr. Adin Sherman at the Northern hospital for the insane, committed suicide late Tuesday afternoon while confined in the city jail on a charge of drunkenness. An empty poison bottle found by his side told the story.

According to statements of the police, Doctor Bickford had been intoxicated since being "let out" from the hospital some weeks ago. In the advanced state of intoxication under which he existed since that time, he had written threatening letters to an Oshkosh young woman, whose name is being withheld. He also wrote incoherent letters to Dr. Sherman.

Dr. Bickford, declared by Dr. Sherman to be one of the most competent and industrious assistants ever employed at the hospital, was asked to resign by the hospital head some weeks ago, after he had been in state of acute intoxication for a week. He was about 54 years of age. He was born at Dresden, Me. He is survived by his mother and one brother, who are his only relatives so far as can be ascertained.

CORN PRICES HIT BY WARM WEATHER

Chicago—Severe declines in the price of corn took place Wednesday, accompanied by heavy selling to stop losses. A return of warm, sunny weather left the market without any adequate support from buyers. Shortly before the close, values had broken almost 6 cents a bushel to $1.07 1/2, December delivery. The downward slide of the market began shortly after the opening but went to unusual limits in the final hour of trading. Then rapidly succeeding breaks in price disclosed new orders to sell.

The descent of prices continued until the very last minute of trading. Prices closed heavy 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 cents lower; with December 1.07 1/2 to 1.07 1/4, and May 1.05 to 1.05 1/4.

DEMOCRATS IN CONCLAVE HIT BLAINE, KLAN

Convention Pledges Probe of Severson's Malfeasance Charge

Madison—Scoring the Blaine administration and adopting planks in their platform similar to those which were read into the record of the Republican convention in a minority report, the Democratic platform convention completed its work late Tuesday.

John M. Callahan of Milwaukee was named chairman of the state central committee after the adoption of the platform which endorsed the candidacy of Davis and Bryan and opposed "any effort to amend the constitution so as to interfere with the authority of our courts to declare laws unconstitutional."

Continuing, the platform reads in part:

"We condemn political secret societies as opposed to the exercise of free government and contrary to the spirit of the declaration of independence and the Constitution of the United States. We pledge the Democratic party to oppose any effort on the part of the Ku Klux Klan or any organization to interfere with the religious liberty or political freedom of any citizen and to limit the rights of any citizen or body of citizens because of religion, birth, place or racial origin."

CHARGE WANTON WASTE

"We charge the present state administration with wanton waste and extravagance in the conduct of our state affairs, with responsibility for the insufferable tax burdens now resting upon the people of the state and with creating an army of needless officeholders which is being used as a political machine to perpetuate themselves in power."

"We charge the budget method has been destroyed and that the functions of the legislature have been usurped."

"We charge Governor Blaine with having made the civil service part of a political machine."

"We pledge ourselves to bring about the investigation by the legislature of the charges of malfeasance in office by state officials as called for by the Severson resolution presented to the 1923 session of the legislature."

"We denounce the practice of appointing members of the legislature during their term of office to positions under the administrative power. We are unalterably opposed to making the highway department part of a political machine."

"We pledge our party to economy, simplification of our state government, reduction of taxation, conservation of the natural beauties of Wisconsin, home rule for cities and a reforestation policy scientifically administered."

Secretary Fred R. Zimmerman stated. No penalty is prescribed for the failure to do so, however, and the Socialist ticket will not be excluded from the general election ballots, Zimmerman said. Other party conventions met the requirements.

Couzens Victory In Michigan Sure, Claim

National Campaign Is Mere Incident in Upheaval Which Carries Great Significance, Lawrence Says.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1924 by The Post Pub. Co. Detroit, Mich.—Maybe Messrs. Coolidge, LaFollette and Davis are running for the presidency but so far as Michigan is concerned they are mere incidents in an upheaval which carries with it a significance that will last beyond election day.

For the election of Senator James Couzens after an extraordinary primary battle is assured and at least one man who refused to follow the leadership of President Coolidge has been approved at the polls and will continue to act independently in the next congress.

Did the Republican party in Michigan uphold Couzens and will that same party next month give Coolidge by an overwhelming ballot the electoral vote of Michigan? And if it does isn't that inconsistent of the Republicans? The answer is that there is no inconsistency and that next election day Mr. Coolidge will carry Michigan by 200,000 or more and Mr. Couzens will be elected senator by a seven-vote margin.

The reason why no inconsistency is involved is that Senator Couzens was not triumphant in a strictly Republican primary. Had it been left to the "regulars" he would have been beaten. What happened was that in a race of four candidates, Senator Couzens had a plurality of 50,000 and that if the regular Republicans could have eliminated the other candidates and thrown their strength behind Judge Tuttle, Mr. Couzens would have surely lost.

PLEDGED TO COUZENS

Ordinarily a primary fight such as that in which Couzens engaged leaves disaffection. But, as a rule, this happens only when a regular or "staple" beats out a progressive, for then the independent vote swings to the "winner party." While the regulars in Michigan do not like Couzens they prefer him to voting for a Democrat. The Republican organization, moreover, is pledged to support Couzens. Before the primary fight, all candidates seeking a Republican nomination were asked to state in advance that they would support the national ticket and platform and so on. Mr. Couzens' letter was not wholly satisfactory but on the other hand it was hard to construe it as a refusal to support Coolidge, especially since Couzens said he himself would vote for Coolidge. Now with Couzens nominated, all the party machinery is by the same token pledged to support him for, he is a regularly selected Republican nominee and entitled to the support of all factions in his party. And he will get the same plus many thousands of votes from the ranks of the independents.

NEW YORK POLICE CAMP DESTROYED

By Associated Press

Tannersville, N. Y.—Indian Head Lodge, main building of the New York Police recreation camp at Plate Cove, six miles from here in the Catskill mountains, was totally destroyed by fire early Wednesday.

Thirty five men sleeping in the structure made their way to safety and were housed in adjoining buildings. It was said every man in the building was accounted for. Origin of the fire is unknown and the loss has not been determined. Location of the camp at a distance from this village made it impossible for the local fire department to extend aid.

Wisconsin Corrupt Practices Act Fails to Reach LaFollette Expenditures

By Associated Press

Madison—The Wisconsin corrupt practices election law does not apply to campaign expenditures for a president or vice president of the United States and a voluntary organization the sole purpose of which is to promote the candidacy of persons for such offices is not subject to the regulations of the law, Deputy Attorney General C. A. Erikson Wednesday advised District Attorney Eugene Wengert of the Milwaukee.

The ruling exempts all collections and expenditures of campaign committees for the LaFollette presidential ticket as well as other presidential tickets. It is understood the opinion was asked with reference to LaFollette collections in the state. The ruling held, however, that the corrupt practices act does apply to presidential electors.

Lodi Banker Disappears with Bonds Estimated to Amount to $25,000

By Associated Press

Lodi—Posses under direction of Sheriff Harry Nehls, Portage, Wednesday started a county-wide search for Ferdinand Markgraf, cashier of the Columbia State bank, who has been missing since Sunday.

A warrant charging Markgraf with misappropriation of funds of the institution has been sworn out by Robert Caldwell, president of the bank and is held by Sheriff Nehls. Bank examiners investigating the institution report that bonds missing may amount to $25,000. The bonds and other securities that are alleged to be missing are said to have been left in the personal care of the bank cashier by patrons of the institution.

Officials searching for the banker expressed belief that he became mentally deranged over financial difficulties and either left this section or took his life.

Members of the Markgraf family have decided to meet all of the bonds and securities which are missing, it is announced. The bonds were not a part of the bank records, officials said, and therefore the bank would not be responsible.

BASEBALL CHIEF URGES JAIL FOR LAX ELECTORATE

Omaha Is Chosen As Next Convention City of American Legion

St. Paul, Minn.—Jail sentences for those who fail to vote as an "encouragement" to bring the electorate to the polls were urged by former Judge Keneas M. Landis in an address to the American Legions National convention here Wednesday afternoon.

Welcomed by a tremendous ovation, the baseball commissioner spoke shortly after Omaha had been selected as the 1925 convention city, winning out over Fort Worth, Tex., the only other candidate.

The dates for the 1925 convention will be set before adjournment of the present gathering. The unofficial vote was Omaha 504 and Fort Worth 452. The official count on the roll call gave Omaha 512 and Fort Worth 440. Fort Worth took an early lead in the election as the roll was called and it was not until New York's 74 votes went to Omaha that the Nebraska city took a lead that was never headed.

Selection of the next convention city came after a hot contest between the Nebraska and Texas cities, the only two presented to the convention as eligible by the committee on the next place.

The convention also accepted the report of the time and place committee recommending acceptance of Philadelphia's invitation for the 1926 convention.

AUTO THIEF GETS 3-YEAR SENTENCE

Wausau—Clifford Duchaine of Cornell, pleaded guilty here Wednesday to the larceny of an automobile at Tonawanda and was given a three-year term in the state prison at Wausau. He admitted to the court that he had twice been guilty of forgery, once at Milwaukee and once in Michigan but that he was both times placed on parole.

George Seiderhawk and Bernard Gullyman of Tonawanda each pleaded guilty to charges of forgery and were given one year terms in the state reformatory at Green Bay. However, at the request of almost every one connected with the case, execution of the sentences were stayed and they were paroled to the state board of control.

Weigelt, Wife Hanger, Declared To Be Sane

Harry Weigelt, former Appleton man who is the confessed slayer of his wife at Oshkosh, is sane. The decision was reached by a sanity commission which examined him at Oshkosh Tuesday.

Examiners appointed by Judge D. E. McDonald to conduct the test were Dr. Adin Sherman, superintendent of the Northern state hospital for the insane and Dr. C. J. Combs, Oshkosh. The physicians gave Weigelt the standard test for insanity at the court house late Tuesday and were to file their report Wednesday.

On account of the peculiar features of the murder, one of the average man of his education and bringing up in the history of Winnebago-co. and the incoherent statements in the man's confession, the attorney appointed to look after his interests asked for the sanity test, the district

G. O. P. PLATFORM BODY ENDORSES BLAINE POLICIES

Minority Report Backing Coolidge Ticket Is Defeated by Vote of 69 to 19

Madison—After adopting a platform which openly and bitterly denounced the Ku Klux Klan and endorsed in concise language the candidacy of Senator Robert M. LaFollette, president and Senator Burton K. Wheeler for vice president, the Republican state platform convention passed into history early Tuesday night. The convention was concluded in record time.

The supremacy of Progressive Republicans in the convention was manifested when a minority platform report submitted by Representative George W. Blanchard of Rock-co. was decisively rejected by a vote of 69 to 19. A number of the conservative members had departed from the convention before the report was submitted, which accounted for the reduction in the vote favorable to the minority platform.

The Republican platform as adopted endorsed the administration of Governor John J. Blaine without reservation, commended his "fearless and wise use of the veto power" during the last legislature, his appointments and his opposition to secret orders. It also advocated reorganization of the state highway department as recently proposed by Governor Blaine.

Amendment of the state emergency law to limit appropriation, and enactment of a state gasoline tax law "with equitable distribution of funds."

In contrast to these main points, the minority report of Representative Blanchard endorsed the candidacy of President Coolidge and Charles C. Dawes, assailed Senator LaFollette's program for overriding the United States Supreme Court, favored repeal of the state emergency fund law and a sharp reduction in state taxes looking toward strict economy.

Under the heading "Liberty of conscience," the platform contains the following declaration:

"We are opposed to the Ku Klux Klan or any organization that would deny to any citizen the free exercise of those sacred rights because of race, nationality, language or religious belief. The evident purpose of the Klan and every other secret political organization is to disorganize and disrupt the harmonious development and existence of economic organizations of workers and farmers."

Adoption of the child labor, initiative and referendum, conservation and home rule amendments were favored. Continuation of opposition to the so-called "Pittsburgh plus" system, opposition to national branch banks and curtailment of highway expenditures were other provisions.

A plank submitted by Senator H. J. Severson calling for a legislative investigation of alleged corruption in the state capital was defeated in the platform committee as was a proposal by Senator John Schuman, calling for resignations of legislative members who are appointed to state positions.

Cavein Shuts Off Deadly Gases After Blast Allowing 12 to Escape

300 JOIN RESCUE PARTY

Dead Men So Badly Charred As to Make Identification Difficult

Kenner, Wyo.—Rescue parties penetrating the debris-laden workings of the mine of the Kemmerer Coal Co. at Sublet, near here Wednesday, had recovered the bodies of 21 miners, victims of Tuesday's explosions.

Last estimates available from unofficial sources placed the number of men still in the mine at 15 although some figures were higher. Twelve men escaped alive Tuesday night.

The company which owns the mine has given out very little information for publication, explaining that all it must be verified before it is issued.

A force of more than 200 rescue workers alternating on shifts of 30 minutes each are making rapid progress in their work of penetrating the mine, despite the mass of debris that embars their labors, according to Sheriff Oakley.

BODIES BADLY BURNED

Bodies removed from the mine were burned almost beyond recognition, the sheriff said. Later checkup shows that probably more than 50 men were in the mine at the time of the explosion, Sheriff Oakley declared. This leaves approximately 18 men unaccounted for.

Twelve men emerged from the mine early Tuesday night unharmed. They were saved from death by a cavein that cut off the deadly gases accumulating in the mine after the fatal blast.

The force of rescue workers was further augmented Wednesday morning by the arrival of a mine rescue car with additional apparatus and men from Rock Springs, Wyo.

Excitement reached fever heat around the mine mouth as the bodies of the dead began to be taken out with hundreds of grief stricken relatives attempting to identify the charred corpses as those of their loved ones who were trapped in the mine.

Identification proceeded slowly because of the condition of the bodies, Sheriff Oakley said.

NEW H. N. S. WILL BUY CHURCH BELFRY

P. A. Smith Is Made President of New Society Formed at Combined Locks

Organization of a Holy Name society in St. Paul Catholic parish at Combined Locks took place at a meeting Tuesday evening. The club immediately set itself a big task, that of raising funds to erect a belfry for the church which recently was established there.

Officers chosen for the year are: President, P. A. Smith; secretary, Herman Jansen; treasurer, William Van Zeeland; marshal, Fred Williams.

Need of a belfry for the church was discussed, as the tower of the present building is not big enough to support a church bell. The society therefore voted to raise $1,000 which will be used to build a tower ample for a belfry. It will be added outside the church.

A series of card parties will be given as one means of obtaining money. The first will be at Combined Locks park pavilion on Sept. 25 and the people of the valley will be invited.

Booyah was served to the members, prepared by Joseph Guneschewich.

LIVING MODELS DRAW HUNDREDS

Hundreds of persons attended the style show presented by the J. C. Penney company in its island windows Tuesday night. Fifteen Appleton girls modeled sixty-five new fall dresses, including party dresses, silk and wool afternoon dresses, wool tailored dresses and fifty coats. Millinery worn by the models was from Markow's. Children's clothes were displayed by four little girls.

The models made their entrance through a large oval representing a picture frame and then promenaded a 80-foot platform built especially for the occasion so that the spectators could see without crowding.

Those that were unable to see the style review on Tuesday night will have an opportunity to see it at 7:30 Wednesday night, when it is repeated.

Prefers Jail To Punishment As Deserter

"I would sooner do four years at the Green Bay reformatory than go back to camp," said Albert Hottenstine, Shawano, 18-year old deserter from the United States army whom Chief George T. Prim took back to Fort Sheridan, Ill. It is not known whether he will be court martialed at camp or whether he will be sent to Fort Leavenworth federal prison.

Hottenstine was arrested by Appleton police here last week on a charge of stealing his father's Ford automobile and trading it away for a Buick car. His accomplice, John Gago, Shawano, was arrested with him and turned over to the Shawano-co authorities.

When the sheriff of Shawano-co arrived, it became known that Gago was to stand trial for burglary the day after he disappeared. He was charged with breaking into a house and stealing about $43.

It also transpired that the two boys had burglarized the farm home of Wallace Pingel, route 1, Appleton. While driving on state trunk highway 25 recently, the boys ran into some posts in front of the Pingel home. They went to the house for help and finding no one at home, they entered it by way of the basement and stole some preserves, a camera and a child's bank containing a small amount of money. The Pingel's missed the bank but were not aware of the theft of the camera and other articles until they were returned to them by the police.

Booyah was served to the members, prepared by Joseph Guneschewich.

BOARD WILL ASK SALARY REFUND

Extension of Time Enables County to Claim $4,000 of
Bottensek Estate

The need of a call for a special meeting of the county board of supervisors to consider the results of the investigation ordered in the office of the late Judge Bottensek has been averted.

Following an opinion received from the attorney general that the increase in salary granted Judge Bottensek during his term of office was illegal, the committee appointed to investigate the matter held several meetings to deliberate on the next procedure. On the strength of the opinion, more than $4,000 in salary was illegally drawn by the judge, it is said.

A claim against the Bottensek estate was contemplated, but it was found that the time in which to file it would expire before the November session of the board. An extension of time, however, has been granted by Judge Fred V. Heilmann in county court, thus making the extra session unnecessary. The committee investigating the matter consists of William Rohan, Anton Jansen and John Sawall.

William McDonald of Chassel, Mich., visited in Appleton Tuesday with Phi Kappa Tau fraternity brothers. Mr. McDonald will attend the university at Ann Arbor, Mich., this year.

Few Here Try To Send Their Letters C. O. D.

While plenty of letters bearing insufficient postage are dropped into the letter slots at Appleton postoffice, there are few people who do so will-fully, according to the authorities. Most errors of this sort are made through ignorance or carelessness, it was said at the postoffice, and it is seldom that anyone drops a letter into the box with the idea that it is of more value to the person who receives it, and he is therefore the one to pay the postage.

The postoffice employee who is annoyed the most by letters with postage due is the rural carrier, who is not allowed to leave his vehicle and who must hail the farmer to collect the money. In many instances the rural carrier and often the city carrier who finds no one at home pays the few cents due himself rather than bring the letter back from the office.

Business firms in Appleton often deposit a sum ranging from a dollar upwards at the postoffice so that letters with postage due may be delivered without much trouble. These now are 52 concerns which deposit money at the postoffice for this purpose. Many of the business concerns have scales in their offices so they can estimate the correct amount of postage.

Many people stop at the window and have their letters weighed if they think they will require more than the customary two cents and this is encouraged by postoffice officials.

If it is ever discovered that a person or concern is habitually and will-fully dropping letter bearing insufficient postage into the box the department notifies them and asks that it be stopped. Letters that do not bear any postage are not sent on, but are held at the postoffice. The person to whom the letter is addressed is notified or if there is a return address it is returned to the sender.

DEMOCRATS NAME MATHIE CHAIRMAN

Demand for Denunciation of Klan by Name Expected to Cause Fight

By Associated Press
Madison—The state Democratic platform convention was organized here Tuesday shortly after noon with Karl Mathie of Wausau, candidate for lieutenant governor, as permanent chairman.

Immediately after organization and appointment of the committee, a recess was taken until 3 P. M., at which time the resolutions committee will report to the convention.

John M. Callahan of Milwaukee, was scheduled for appointment as state central committeeman.

Throughout the morning, party leaders were in conference ironing out the rough spots. The announcement of John H. Callahan of Milwaukee that he intends to ask the adoption of a plank similar to the one rejected at the national convention in New York denouncing the Ku Klux Klan by name promised somewhat of a fight in what otherwise gave indications of a peaceful meeting.

GROH PRESIDENT OF H. N. S. GROUP

Frank Groh was elected president of the Holy Name society of St. Joseph church at the annual meeting Sunday morning in St. Joseph hall.

Other officers elected for the ensuing year are: Vice president, William Keller, Jr.; secretary, Al. Stoegebauer; treasurer, Ambrose Pfefferle; board of advisors, Fred Stoffel, Joseph Leimer and Charles A. Feuerstein.

The next meeting of the society will be held Sunday, morning, Oct. 12. Breakfast will be served to members for the meeting, according to plans made.

PETERS TRADES FARM FOR STORE AT VALDERS

Frank Peters has traded his farm of 100 acres in the town of Greenville, for a general store at Valders, Manitowoc-co, belonging to Edward Olson. The trade was made through Charles B. Tift and both parties are in charge of their new properties.

STATE WALTONS WILL MEET OCT. 15

Game Refuges Will Be Urged for State at Session at Janesville

Janesville—A legislative program which will be carried before the next state legislature for enactment, and general conservation topics will be the center of interest when the Wisconsin division of the Isaac Walton league meets here Oct. 15, under tentative plans worked out by local and state committees.

Steps will be taken by the conventions, it is said, to bring about a definite program for conservation and preservation of wild life. It is claimed by leaders of the league that the state has, to a large extent, failed to perform its duties in the preservation of such life.

Sportsmen from all parts of the state, representing a large per cent of the 175,000 persons who take out game licenses with the state conservation commission each year, are expected to be on hand for the convention. Speakers of state and interstate reputation will be brought to the convention, it is planned.

Game refuges will be one of the main topics among conservation measures. It is claimed that to a large extent natural refuges have been largely destroyed in recent years through the drainage of marshes and other natural resorts along the Mississippi and in the lake regions.

The league's platform will be worked out and adopted as a special feature. Judge Henry Graess, Green Bay, president of the league.

JUDGE DAVIS ON CONGRESS AND THE COURTS

That was a strong statement made by John W. Davis the other day at Topeka, when he said with reference to upholding the liberties under the constitution: "If we are disposed not to surrender them, what is our guarantee and our protection for their preservation? It is that when any congress, any legislature, or any executive passes a law or undertakes to enforce a law that would deprive us of them, we will ignore the law and declare that it has no value or substance."

On first blush one might construe this to mean nullification. We think there will be an inclination in some quarters to place this interpretation on his words. The personal liberty advocates who contend that the Volstead act is a transgression of their constitutional rights may regard them as a defense of the wide-spread violations of this law. Some newspapers like the Chicago Tribune which have openly encouraged nullification will take Judge Davis into their fold as one of them.

But this is not what Judge Davis meant. What he did mean was that when citizens believed their rights or liberties under the constitution were infringed by an act of congress it was their duty to resist that act, but of course in an orderly and legal way. In other words, he would immediately make a test case of the law by refusing to obey it and submitting the question to the courts for determination. He says: "If we are arrested for its disobedience what happens? We stand before the court and say, 'this law under which arrest has been made is no law at all, and we call upon you to so declare; to declare that our liberties have been invaded and release us from this unlawful custody.'"

The court, and in the last analysis the supreme court, is the thing Judge Davis wishes to picture in the public mind as the defender of popular rights and liberties conferred and guaranteed by the constitution. He wants to show that where congress through a tyrannical, prejudiced or subversive use of its powers steps over the line of personal, social, religious or political freedom set up by the constitution there is a supreme court to intervene and say that it shall not be done. Judge Davis does not assert the doctrine of nullification, for that would be fatal to any form of government and would make no difference whether congress were the final judge of its legislative authority or not. His idea is not to indicate sympathy with those who are defying prohibition, but to encourage the violation of law.

The sole purpose is to present the courts, and in particular the supreme court, as the one dependable agency of our government for maintaining the supremacy of the constitution and the liberties it has created—that is, to quote from his address: "Freedom of speech; freedom of the press; freedom of assembly; trial by jury; the right of religious worship according to the dictates of our own conscience; freedom from search and seizure; freedom from conviction by bill of attainder at the hands of any legislature; and all of that long calendar of things that makes every man a free born and independent citizen."

SENATOR SEVERSON RIGHT

Senator Severson is only preserving his self-respect and safeguarding his reputation against the cunning of politics, when he declines to respond to Governor Blaine's demand that he appear before him and disclose whatever evidence he may possess, or sources of evidence, relating to the alleged scandals at the state capital during the last legislative sitting. The governor is a prejudiced party in this affair, and is personally hostile to Mr. Severson. He is neither a court nor a jury before which to present such testimony. Any information the state senator would give would undoubtedly be used to discredit him or would be made light of.

The proper body to investigate the charges of scandal at Madison is a legislative committee. The opportunity to make such an investigation was presented when the legislature was in session, but the charge is made, and we think with foundation, that Governor Blaine himself helped to suppress an inquiry. In view of this, it does not seem consistent of Mr. Blaine to demand anything of Mr. Severson now. Scandal there undoubtedly was, and plenty of it, and if the Blaine administration has any sincere desire to have it cleared up, it can do so by an investigation that will be conducted fairly, openly, and without prejudice to those who would have to give testimony.

The inference of course is that the Blaine administration itself is involved in these scandals, and is interested in suppressing them and not in giving publicity to them. We think color is given to this inference by Mr. Blaine's unreasonable attitude toward Senator Severson. He is simply playing more of the cheap politics that has characterized his whole administration.

HORSE AND BUGGY STILL HERE

The native diversion of buggy ridin' is not destined to disappear. The flivver with all its temptations in the way of space and speed has not yet succeeded in driving the buggy out of its traditional uses. These statements come from no less an authority than the secretary of the Carriage Builders National association, which held a convention in New York a few days ago.

So there is still some pertinence left in the old joke about the skill of the driver who could manage the reins with one hand. There may also be chauffeurs sufficiently skilled to exercise under the necessary conditions the same economy of means. Buggy riding even without the record breaking steed may retain all its first charms when there is present the spell of the moonlight or when the scent of the honeysuckle climbing over the rail fence grows richer in the warm summer air—the right company being present, of course.

All seasons are good for buggy riding under proper circumstances; especially to be recommended is the autumn afternoon with dusk approaching, the air crisp and the glowing leaves of fall keeping pace with the horse along the roadside.

Nor has the horse yet become what has been called a beast of luxury. He is not alone for the lighter vehicles of pleasure. Delivery wagons and other wagons are always needed to wind among narrow streets. These are other assertions of the carriage builders; but are they important in view of the sentimental thrill of knowing that the ancient and honorable sport of buggy ridin' is to survive motor cars?

TODAY'S POEM

LOVE
COME on now, confess it; you know that it's true, you've tried to make love once or twice. And haven't you found it's a hard thing to do, 'cause just words seem to never suffice?
It's love that the world goes around on they say, and we all surely shelter a share. You never can buy it; it's given away; why it's floating around in the air.
The sweetest of love may be given in vain. The truest of lovers may say that the best he has had in return is just pain, yet you can't help it flowing that way.
The oldest of stories; that's just what it seems. 'Twas born when the world started out. It lives in our wake hours; then into your dreams; yet we know not just what it's all about.
Love understands love, but do you or I? No! When we admit it's well, for he loves but lightly—and passes by—where'er his real love he can tell.

CALCIUM LACTATE
The benefit derived from improved calcium (lime) metabolism in cases of asthma, hyperesthetic rhinitis, and hay fever, is receiving more and more recognition. As I have explained in former talks, scientific investigations of the blood have shown that there is a lowered calcium content in these disease conditions. It is not always enough, however, to take more calcium in food or in medicine. Although that does seem to bring considerable relief in many cases, it is probable that there is some peculiar deficiency in the capacity to metabolize or utilize calcium. In most such cases, and this functional deficiency must be taken into account. Physiology teaches that the parathyroid gland controls in some way the metabolism of calcium in the system. Experience teaches that the administration of small doses of parathyroid extract along with some form of calcium brings about improvement in the disease mentioned when perhaps calcium alone fails. And as the thyroid and parathyroid are intimately related, some physicians maintain that minute doses of thyroid extract in conjunction with calcium treatment will accomplish the same purpose.

A British physician reported last year that he was able to obtain excellent results in the treatment of another disease which is characterized, like those mentioned, with more or less periodic seizures, with calcium lactate. At the first warning of the approaching attack of migraine (headache) the victim takes 30 grains of calcium lactate. One subject of migraine should keep on hand some tablets of calcium lactate, which should be fresh. It does not cure migraine, but it often does prevent the attack.

The dosage of calcium advisable for the hay fever, asthma or hyperesthetic rhinitis subject is smaller, say five grains, but this should be taken three times a day over a period of two or three months in the year.

What amount or form of parathyroid or thyroid gland extract one should take along with the calcium lactate is a question for the medical adviser to consider. But the experiment of taking calcium lactate alone is without any risk, at any rate, whether it does any good or not.

Occasionally a dose of calcium lactate in tablet form provokes irritation to the stomach. If so, it should be broken up to a powder and taken in about half a glassful of water. The best time to take it is after meals.

In the judgement of so good an authority as Professor Henry C. Sherman of Columbia university the ordinary mixed diet of Americans in cities and towns is probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element. That fact may have some bearing on the prevalence of the diseases mentioned. This is merely my conjecture. Normally, about three pounds of calcium enters into the structure of the human body.

Foods rich in calcium are, perhaps, not freely enough used in the average American urban household are cheese (all kinds), fresh milk, egg (the yolk particularly), dried beans, almonds, walnuts, peanuts, cabbage, carrots, oranges, oatmeal, prunes, unmillied wheat, wheat bran.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Reading in Bed.
Is it injurious to read while lying down in bed flat on the back, either in the daytime or at night with sufficient light? (K. P.)
Answer.—Not with sufficient and properly arranged light. This, however, is the difficulty. The light must come from the floor below the plane of vision as you lie on your back and illuminate the page. Light from windows or from lamps in the usual arrangement would fall upon your face more or less, and that make the reading a strain. The reason why physicians often prescribe reading in bed is that a convalescent's energy reserve is exhausted by the illness and cannot afford, therefore, to draw on the reserve for the strain or effort of reading in bad light. It's a lot nicer to have a nurse read to one—a nurse who is easy to look at, understand. Or a wife will do in a pinch. Or merge 'em.

House Chose President In 1824 Election
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Washington, D. C.—Owing to the possibility of the election being thrown into the house of representatives this year, it will be interesting to review the history of the tenth election, held in 1824, the second contest to be decided in congress since the foundation of the government.
When the citizens of Blount-co., Tennessee, held a massmeeting at Maryville early in the year of 1823 they little thought that their action was to revolutionize the methods of choosing a president of the United States; that they were to be responsible for the beginning of political party organizations in this country; or that they were to take the first step to prove that a man has a right to aspire to the office of president, whether trained or untrained in statecraft.
These vitally important things which directly resulted from the Blount-co. massmeeting became issues in the campaign of 1824 and caused that contest to be the first in which the American nation selected a president according to the general methods still obtaining.
TROUBLE STARTED
This Blount-co. massmeeting started all the trouble. It refused to be bound by the then recognized rules that a president must be selected from among those schooled in statecraft and experienced in administration. Every president up to that time had been a man directly connected with the separation from England and the formation of the republic under the constitution.
The idea of the succession to the presidency was firmly fixed in the minds of the politicians. It happened that there were four candidates in the race.
They were John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts, secretary of state; William H. Crawford of Georgia, secretary of the treasury; John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, secretary of war; and Henry Clay of Kentucky, speaker of the house of representatives.
Then this Blount-co. massmeeting occurred. It pow-wowed awhile and then adopted a resolution from all nominating for president of the United States, Andrew Jackson of Tennessee.
THE TENNESSEE IDEA
Thus originated what would be known in political terms nowadays as the "Tennessee idea." Andrew Jackson had been a great soldier. Everybody recognizes that fact and everybody praised him for the strategy of Horseshoe Bend and his military genius in the battle of New Orleans.
For the time the three members of Monroe's cabinet and the speaker of the house who were running for president declined to pay much attention to Jackson—in fact, he was regarded as a joke.
At this time, it must be remembered, there was only one party. The old Federal party organization had disappeared and Monroe had received every vote but one in the electoral colleges of 1820. The Democratic party had everything its own way.
The old conservative organization made a firm stand for Crawford. He had the support of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the party, of Pres-

Friends organized a broom factory and made him director. Since that time he has built up his business until he now employs 35 men and women to make brooms while he goes out on the road and sells them. And all of his 35 employees are also blind. The only person in the factory who can see is the bookkeeper.

Q. How can ink spots be taken off a walnut table? T. L.
A. In order to remove ink spots from a walnut table put a few drops of spirits of niter (nitric acid) in a teaspoonful of water, touch the spot with a feather dipped in the mixture, and as soon as the ink disappears rub immediately with a rag wet in cold water or it will leave a white mark. The spots should then be polished.
Q. What is lemon sole? J. E. B.
A. It is a kind of flounder. It is a fish well liked in England and is found near Boston and Gloucester on our coast. It is called lemon sole on account of its light color.
Q. How wide is the Jordan River and what is the fall from source to mouth? O. L. W.
A. The Jordan rises in Northern Palestine and flows through a narrow rocky bed into Lake of Galilee. From this it emerges and for 65 miles, direct, or 200 miles winding, traverses and exceedingly rocky, precipitous path, until it falls into the northern end of the Dead Sea. The river throughout its course is exceedingly shallow in the dry season. The average width is from 30 to 50 yards. At its mouth it is 150 yards wide. The plain of the Jordan is subject to great inundations during the rainy season. The total fall of the river from its rise to its mouth at the Dead Sea, which is 1,312 feet below sea level, is 2,300 feet.
Q. Please name the mountain passes over the Continental Divide? I. C. L.

Q. What is the quotation about the "mist and the blinding rain, and nothing was ever the same again"? E. M. A.
A. George McDonald in "Phantasies" wrote: "Alas! how easily things go wrong! A sigh too deep, a kiss too long, and then comes a mist and a weeping rain. And life is never the same again."

Signing Of Women For Club Begins

Supper of Workers is Held—All Who Have Community Interest Wanted

"Go out to find the girls and women who are interested in making Appleton a great big community organization and give them the opportunity of signing up for the privileges of Appleton Womens club."

This was the message which Miss Lucy Helen Pearson, new general director of Appleton Womens club, on Tuesday evening, gave the group of girls in charge of the registration for the recreation department of the club. The group had a tray supper in the lounge of the clubhouse and included girls from the industries as well as from the schools, offices and stores of the city.

Details of the registration were outlined by Mrs. C. Willard Cross, who is chairman of the recreation department. With the aid of the small newspaper published to interest prospective recreation department people, Miss Ann Smith, acting director of the department, told of the opportunities which are being offered. A complete list of the activities of the entire club is printed on the back of the identification card which is a part of the registration blank.

In her talk, Miss Pearson emphasized the need for doing things with other people, not for them. The girls who were present at the meeting are among the most actively interested ones in the department. Several of them have become interested through the production of the "Take of Fox" last spring. Little needed to be said to them about the advantages which the club offers, but Miss Pearson summed up the idea of the registration as it is different from the membership drive with its dollar fee, followed as it was almost immediately by the financial campaign.

A check will be made every two days to see how many are being signed up with the club. It is estimated that all the former members of the department and a goodly number of new registrants will be secured in ten days.

In the meantime, registration of members of other departments of the club is taking place at the clubhouse. All women who have been identified with Appleton Womens club at any time in its existence, which covers a period of only four years, are urged to stop in at the clubhouse at any time to add their names to the list.

Story Of China Told In Pageant

A pageant, "Broken China," will be given by members of the Philathea class of First Baptist church Friday evening, Sept. 19, in the church.

The play is a strong representation of China's unchristian state, and will portray its great present need. Mrs. E. M. Salter is directing the work of the girls, and the pageant they are giving is a repetition of the one presented at the Wisconsin Baptist assembly at Green Lake in August.

The cast includes the following characters: Mother-in-law, Chun Shau (Graceful Long Life); Mildred French; the husband, her son, Wu Sin Yin (Great Sound Language); Muriel Smolk; his wife Chow Wau, (Autumn Cloud); Katherine Arnold; his oldest daughter, Ling Te (Lead Along a Brother); Marjorie Walker; his young daughter, Tso (Fancy Beauty); Evelyn Stallman; the friend, To Hel (Great Happiness); Lucetta Zimmerman; the photographer, Harold Eads; the missionary, Myrtle Trentage; and schoolchildren, coolies and the baby.

The action of the play will be divided into a prelude and four scenes, which will be laid in China, and a postlude, laid in America. The most distinctive feature of the printed program is this information:

"The honorable audience is respectfully informed that the miserable language used in the prelude and the four scenes following is Chinese, as these scenes take place in China; but the postlude is given in America, in its own celestial English tongue."

VAN ALSTYNE GIVEN PRAISE IN WEST

Former Appleton Papermill Chemist Is With Vancouver Concern

In a special edition of the Vancouver Evening Columbian published at Vancouver, Wash., a complimentary article was printed about John W. VanAlstyne, who made his home in Appleton for many years prior to his going to Rhinelander and the Pacific coast.

Mr. VanAlstyne is now in charge of the sulphite plant of the Columbia Paper Mills at Vancouver. His early experiences in the paper manufacturing business were gained while he was identified with the Kimberly-Clark company of Neenah by whom he was employed for eleven years. Mr. VanAlstyne returned to Appleton two months ago for his family who had been making their home in the Humphrey Pierce residence on Second-st.

IN BUSINESS LONG TIME

The Vancouver article reads: "J. W. VanAlstyne, who is in charge of the Columbia River Paper Mills, has for nearly 30 years been engaged in the manufacture of sulphuric acid and is a thorough student of every phase of the intricate sulphite process through which the raw hemlock stock is treated in its preparation for the paper making machine.

"During his years of experience as superintendent of the sulphite departments of three of the largest pulp mills in the middle west, Mr. VanAlstyne acquired a knowledge of the vagaries of the sulphurous process that has particularly fitted him to assume the superintendency of the modern sulphite equipment which has been installed by the Columbia River Paper Mills.

FORMERLY AT K-C MILLS

"Another feature that makes the association of Mr. VanAlstyne with the Columbia River Paper Mills particularly fortunate is that he and Fred H. Fuller, superintendent of the papermill, were associated with one another from 1902 to 1905 in the employ of Kimberly-Clark company of Neenah.

"Mr. VanAlstyne gained his first experience in the sulphite process with this company and was employed at the Neenah plant for 11 years. He left it to become superintendent of the sulphite department of Rhinelander Paper company of Rhinelander, a position which he held for 14 years.

"Mr. VanAlstyne resigned his superintendency with the Rhinelander company to accept a similar position with the Peshtigo Pulp & Paper company of Peshtigo, Wis., which position he held for two years, resigning to accept the superintendency of the sulphite department of the Columbia River Paper Mills on April 1, 1924."

Taste Of Science Makes Pupils Question Things They Took For Granted

A curiosity about the why and wherefore of things is what Dr. M. H. Small is trying to arouse in seventh and eighth graders of the Third and Fifth ward schools who are standing on the threshold of science, a new field and a broader one than they have before looked out upon.

"I don't care what Sonny knows about books, but I want him to learn to ask questions of himself," said Deuteronomy Jones, a character in a book called "Sonny." Dr. Small is trying to instill a little rebellion against statements that are to be accepted because the world says they are true, and opinions that are swallowed, unproven, because it is easier to swallow them whole than to Fletcherize.

The course which will extend through several months is given bi-weekly in the Third and Fifth schools, and begins with a general survey of questions that are in the realm of chemical physics. Undoubtedly, the plan will succeed with some of the pupils because the response many of the students gave during the first lesson of the course was sincere and intensely interesting.

Dr. Small is conducting his course by means of informal questioning and laboratory experiments. He is not lecturing in its formal sense because the pupils are not yet accustomed to laboratory methods of reasoning, and consequently will be able to learn the new process more quickly by reciting than by listening.

TAKE FIRST LESSON

In the first lesson, only suggestions of the broad questions that may be asked about every conceivable object in the world were given. For instance, the question came up as to whether a lead pencil really contained lead. The whole class believed it did. When asked why, one girl answered that "Everybody called it a lead pencil, and so it had lead in it."

Dr. Small then explained that the supposed lead was in reality graphite, and belonged to the same kingdom as coal and diamonds.

He told them they probably were being fooled by a great many things because they had not learned to ask questions of themselves, and find out the why of things around them.

Subsequently, the law of gravity was discussed and the experiment of falling balls made. Two balls of equal weight were dropped down two inclined planes of different angles. The class was asked "Will the balls strike the floor at the same time?" Almost the whole class thought that the steepest plane made the ball roll quickest. They were sent to find out for the next lesson. Other questions that came up in connection with gravity and were left over to next time so that the students might have a chance to answer them were: Why do you stay on the floor? Is there a land where there is no "up" or "down"? How much would you weight in such a land? Will water run up hill? All these problems will stimulate a curiosity to find out where they may be answered and will probably initiate a desire in several of the pupils to study physics. At least it will make all of them less glibly about the many things they are told every day.

SHOWS THEM CHEMISTRY

The magic that is part of the science of chemistry was demonstrated in solution changes, and the students liked best of all the color formations resulting from mixtures of various chemical solutions. Dr. Small told them that by such methods of mixing, colors and dyes and paints were concocted, and that he would show them more about such solutions another time.

Chemical physics will be the science taken up during these first few weeks. Then botany, biology, and physiology will follow and finally a correlation of the whole, which is probably the most important part of the whole course, because no student who really listens will be able to come away from the course without a broad picture to fill in for himself. This foundation is expected to help when he goes on to high school and college. Details seem so much more important when they are all going together to make a larger thing, and each student will know that everything he studies is just one more detail to fit into the picture of the world he is trying to understand.

Editor and His People Is Book About Big Man in Small Town

BY MATT C. ROEMER

In the Editor and His People, a volume of editorials from the pen of William Allen White, selected and arranged by Helen O. Mahin, the smalltown editor is seen in his role of guide and mentor to his readers. Religion and politics, sociology and history, wit, humor and pathos—all these flow from the pen, or more probably from the typewriter, of Mr. White with a clearness of thought and singleness of purpose and above all, with an unselfishness seldom seen in the modern press. Through each editorial, from the first, in which the editor, a newcomer in the town of Emporia, Kans., introduces himself to his prospective readers, to the last, which is an interesting comment on the situation in Russia in January, 1923, gleams a selfless desire to acquaint the world with the truth.

William Allen White is reputed to be one of the most widely read editors of the age, and perusal of his editorials not only makes this seem entirely natural, but leaves the reader with a desire to continue reading more of the same. The language used to bring Mr. White's ideas before the public is typically American rather than "good English." It is plain and ungarbled, but some of his descriptions have a beauty unsurpassed in prose or poetry, and his meaning can never be in doubt.

The book deals first with the editor and his personal affairs, then with the community in which he carries on his activities, with the state, the nation and last of all with world problems. It seems to bring the reader in direct touch with every character described, and in this better fulfills the requirements of a textbook than many of those now used in schools. The personal touch and the feeling of equality it produces maintain the reader's interest from cover to cover, and Mr. White has proven that even in a small country town, fact is often more interesting than fiction.

Mr. White approaches each of his subjects entirely unafraid and with an impartial justice seldom paralleled. He tells of several embarrassing situations which arose for him through this attitude early in his career, and upon reading his work it is plain to be seen that he must have made enemies as well as friends. But even in condemning criminals, the editor seeks out their good points in order to cast the glow of charity over the darkness of evil. If he sees that he has been wrong in his judgment, he is quick to admit his error and reverse his decision, but whatever his opinion at the moment, he drives toward his objective with a singleness of purpose above all consideration of friendship, political allegiance or public opinion.

The Editor and His People is well worth anyone's time and money, should be among the volumes of every modern library.

WILBUR HASTENS TO MEETING OF CABINET

Washington, D. C.—The situation regarding appropriation for the navy was brought to a focus Tuesday as Secretary Wilbur, cutting short his western trip at the request of President Coolidge, was speeding east with the expectation that he would arrive here in time for Friday's cabinet meeting.

It was indicated at the White House after the secretary had left San Diego, Calif., Monday by airplane to catch a fast train for the east, that while there was no special significance in the call for his return, it was desired that he be here to confer with the president regarding the next budget allowance for the navy.

By ARNOLD MULDER

A RADICAL ON AMERICAN CLASSICS

A newspaper printing a story about Ludwig Lewisohn, author of "Upstream," captioned it: "Radical Praises American Classics." The implication of the head was, as shown in the story that followed, that it was passing strange that a man like Lewisohn, radical in the extreme in politics, religion, in his social philosophy, should have anything good to say of the oldtimers who wrote our literature of an earlier day.

But the phenomenon of a radical praising the classic American writers is not nearly as strange as would appear on the face of it. The fact is that a considerable number of writers who made American literature were also radicals and it is therefore not strange that a radical of today should be in sympathy with the thoughts of the radicals of an earlier day.

Take a gentle-hearted poet like Whitman as an extreme example. Whitman was very decidedly a radical in his day. During most of his life he was in radical opposition to the current thoughts of the respectable people among whom he lived. It was radicalism in his day, 20 years before the Civil war, to have a good word to say for the abolition of slavery.

Such sentiments were radical not only in the south but in the north as well. But Whitman insisted on being radical in spite of the fact that it hurt the sale of his books.

EMERSON A RADICAL Emerson was another radical. Emerson is radical even today if the full implications of his books are taken into consideration. A good many respectable people in Emerson's day thought of him as a dangerous man, and many more would have considered him dangerous if they had understood what he was talking about.

In the theological age he refused to subscribe to the prevailing theological opinions. He was a radical and his work is still radical.

Wait Whitman was a radical of the radicals in his day and even today he has a million times more in common with radicals like Lewisohn than with political and social conservatives.

Even Hawthorne, whose work has been the theme of a thousand sermons and whose work is cheerfully recommended to the youth of the land by the most careful protector of things as they are, was a radical in fundamental philosophy even though on the surface he appeared to be with the "safe and sane" element.

True, there were many conservatives among the writers who produced the recognized American classics, but the proportion of radicals was perhaps as large as that of today. Such a classic writer as Thoreau was radical not only in literature but also in politics and he went to jail rather than conform to the current political thought.

NEED TO READ CRITICALLY People who wonder how a radical like Lewisohn can be in sympathy with the authors of American classic are astonished very probably simply because they are not acquainted with these classics at first hand. They know Emerson and Thoreau and Whitman and others merely as names. They assume that because these writers lived in an older day, because they are being studied in school, because it is respectable to admire them, therefore they must have been safe and sane and conservative. They have not taken the trouble to read them critically and to apply to them the same standards they apply to the books of present-day writers.

Lewisohn on the other hand has really read the American classics. He knows what those radicals of another day were talking about and he knows that there is more agreement between his ideas and theirs than between his and the conservatives of today. It is reasonable to expect that Lewisohn himself will go through the same process these classics have passed through. If his books live in literature at all, as they have a fair chance of doing, the hidebound conservatives of fifty or a hundred years from now, will, without taking the trouble to read him, look upon him as one of them.

BOOKS AND BOOK MEN

To read a new Locke novel is to meet at least one old friend who, for some reason, has changed his name, grown a mustache, perhaps, or has dyed his grey hair.

But you say to yourself, "I've seen him some place before. Now where was it?"

And so it is in "The Coming of Amos" (Dodd Meade) latest from the pen of the ever productive William J. Locke. There is the usual "beloved" character, the smooth flow of polite language and social goings on a gentleman or two who take honor with the seriousness of the chivalric age; some persons of title who make light conversations and a writing style that is both gracious and genial.

The realist gift Locke possesses, in all probability is this capacity, to write melodrama with seeming seriousness and yet with a gesture that plainly implies that he knows better. "The Coming of Amos" is amusing and will be widely read.

Maria Thompson Davies, author, playwright and artist, died suddenly Sept. 3, at the National Arts club, New York City where she had made her home. Death was due to heart disease, and was a complete surprise to her many friends.

Miss Davies was born in Harrodsburg, Ky., and was in her fifty-second year. She studied painting in Paris from 1902 to 1904, and a few years later exhibited miniatures at several Paris shows. She also won distinction as an art jewelry worker, but it was as a writer that she was best known, having written thirteen novels since 1909, when "Miss Selma Sue" and "The Soap Box Babies" appeared. "The Melting of Molly" and "The Daredevil" were dramatized.

Miss Davies after her return from abroad, lived for a time at Sweetbriar farm, Madison, Tenn. She had lived many years at the National Arts club, on Nineteenth-st., New York City.

The eighteenth Fletcher mystery story to be brought out under the Borzoi imprint is the "Time worn Town," which was published in July by Knopf. While the last two stories—"The Mazaroff Mystery" and "The King Versus Wargrave" were laid largely in London, the latest is a return to the locale of some of the earlier ones and the mystery starts in a small country town. Where this leads to only the careful reader is entitled to know.

WINTRY TALE IS POPULAR DESPITE CHILLY WEATHER

Curwood's "A Gentleman of Courage" Is Most Sought at Library

People stay indoors to escape the chilly days that have pervaded Appleton, yet the most popular book, according to the list compiled at Appleton public library, is one of the northland. "A Gentleman of Courage," by James Oliver Curwood, Curwood has always appealed to lovers of romance and adventure and his newest book is the type that appeals as evenings grow longer and cooler.

It is evident that people read to be amused and entertained now, for other books that were listed with the most popular were "The Thirteenth Letter" by Natalie Sumner Lincoln, famous because of her ability to write good detective stories, "Prudence's Daughter" by Hueston, another of the "Prudence" stories that are ever popular, and "A Laugh a Day Keeps the Doctor Away" by Cobb.

Biography is popular with many people and foremost among the biographies at the library is "In the Footsteps of the Lincoln" by Ida M. Tarbell. The story of Abraham Lincoln really begins in 1837. This new story of Lincoln is a narrative of his origin and family, from the time the first Lincolns set foot on American soil.

In the children's department the best circulators for last week were Bassett's "Story of Lumber" and Horne's "Story of Great Artists." School influences were apparent in the choice of books made by the youngsters. Another series of books that has been popular with the young group is M. M. George's "Little Journeys to France," "Little Journeys to Norway," and books of journeys to other countries.

ETHEL M. KELLEY

"Wings" (Knopf), the second novel of Ethel M. Kelley, is the story of three women who influence the life of a poet who is almost a genius—the one he loves, the one he marries and the one who loves him.

They are not simple souls, but in 200 pages they are absolutely revealed to you because the author understands them so thoroughly herself. Miss Kelley is working herself unto the class with Willa Cather and Edith Wharton. Here is a typical bit of description:

"She had beauty of the sort that comes from within, despite her features, which were mostly bad. She radiated a kind of tortured fire that did not warm him—a New England fire—She was like a New England room now he thought of it—the kind they heated with a base burner—a glowing fire at the heart of it that did not take the chill out of the corners."

TELLS OF CITY MAN WITH FARMING BUG

There are few city people who at sometime in their life have not fancied that they would like to farm and it is for those stricken with the malady that Wheeler McMillen, associate editor of "Farm and Fireside," has written "Farming Fever," recently published by D. Appleton and company. The author says, in a preface, "This book is intended for the information and amusement of the city man who fancies he would like to farm. I have tried to answer the questions the urbanite would ask before he decided whether to become a farmer, and to suggest a few he might not think to ask."

"Farming Fever" is an excellent picture of farm life, and though the author says it is written for the city man who is inclined toward farming, it would be a valuable addition to the library of any farmer.

Mr. McMillen presents the life of the average farmer, his worries, his pleasures, his hopes, his gains. He brings out that the simple life is not always free from worries and anxieties as is so often imagined, nor is it the uninteresting existence that is pictured by some. Farming is a business, one discovers after reading "Farming Fever," and the better one is prepared for the business before he enters it, the more successful he is apt to be.

The question of whether brains help a farmer, capital, how about the wife, getting the money for produce, the general farmer, the specialist, easy routes to easy street and, what kind of a farm would you pick, are discussed in a practical, but entertaining way. One doesn't find out in this book how to raise hogs, but discovers whether he would like to.

The purpose of the book is expressed best by the author's own words. He says, "I am interested neither in allaying nor exciting the fever. I have desired to present food for thought rather than stuff for dreams."

"The medicine has given me a fine appetite when I had none. It has taken away my awful dizzy, tired feelings and replaced them with new life and energy. In a few words, Tanlac has brought me health and strength that makes life and work a pleasure."

The Good Maxwell—The Good Friend of Its Owners

Tens of thousands of American families look upon their good Maxwell cars with a feeling akin to positive gratitude.

For the good Maxwell has enabled them to regard the motor car as something more than merely a means of transportation.

If you examine into the basic reasons for such performance, and for Maxwell's economical, care-free service, you discover that both the new transmission and new rear axle are strong and rugged enough for a truck; that the simple device of a platform spring under the front end of the motor, combined with the balancing of reciprocating parts to the fraction of an ounce, practically eliminates any sense of vibration; that in proportion to weight, it is actually stronger than cars costing two, three or even four times as much.

The good Maxwell is thus fulfilling, with almost startling success, the mission its makers proclaimed four years ago, when they announced that—"The new and powerful organization now manufacturing the good Maxwell is able to give and proposes to give, motor car values so unmistakable that they cannot remain for a moment in question."

6. O. P. CHOOSES BURKE AS NINTH DISTRICT ELECTOR

Progressives Divide with Conservatives on State Appointments

Madison—La Follette Progressive Republicans won the first contest over Republican presidential electors at the Republican state platform convention voting down, 68 to 31, a proposal of Coolidge followers to appoint a committee to choose the electors for the regular ticket.

The vote came after Governor Blaine had submitted a list of electors proposed by the Progressives, which he said, was favorable to the Coolidge-Dawes presidential ticket.

Wallace Ingalls of Racine submitted a substitute proposal calling for the appointment of a committee of conservatives to draw up the slate of electors.

The list submitted by the Progressives follows:

HEADED BY PHILIPP

Electors at large—E. L. Philipp, Milwaukee; Mrs. Theodore Youmans, Waukesha.

District electors—First—F. L. Norton, Racine.

Second—Theodore Benfer, Sheboygan.

Third—Magnus Swenson, Madison.

Fourth—Lyman Wheeler, Milwaukee.

Fifth—Wheeler Bloodgood, Milwaukee.

Sixth—George A. Buckstaff, Oshkosh.

Seventh—George Gordon, La Crosse.

Eighth—L. M. Sturtevant, Wausau.

Ninth—Timothy Burke, Green Bay.

Tenth—Mrs. A. H. Shoemaker, Eau Claire.

Eleventh—Mrs. Mary Scott Johnson, Superior.

WOULD REFUTE REPORTS

In discussing the list he submitted, Governor Blaine said it was to refute reports that the LaFollette followers intended to place electors favorable to the independent presidential ticket on the regular Republican ballot, that the Progressives decided to suggest electors whom they considered favorable to the Coolidge-Dawes ticket. He said the Progressives desired fair play on the question of electors and moved the adoption of the list.

In offering his counter proposal, Mr. Ingalls said that factions of parties are usually granted the privilege of making up their own suggestions. He said the caucus which suggested the list submitted by Mr. Blaine did not include a Coolidge supporter. Attorney General Ekern spoke for the Blaine proposal while Representative Perry of Milwaukee spoke against it, saying that there were persons on the list for whom he would not vote as Coolidge electors.

A roll call vote was taken on the Ingalls proposal, the first record vote of the convention in which the Progressives outnumbered the conservatives.

THESE ARE THE FOUR MEN CHOSEN TO COMMAND THE DIVISIONS IN THE ANNUAL Y. M. C. A. MEMBERSHIP RACE UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF GEORGE H. PACKARD, GENERAL CHAIRMAN. THEY ARE: (TOP ROW) A. W. AGRELL, C. O. GOCHNAUER; (BOTTOM ROW) ROY MARSTON, GEORGE R. WETTENGEL.

Another important step has been taken in preparation for the Y. M. C. A. membership campaign opening Sept. 29 through the appointment of the four division chairmen and four associates to assist them. Division chairman announced by George H. Packard, campaign chairman, are A. W. Agrell, C. O. Gochbauer, Roy Marston and George R. Wettengel.

Each of these chairmen has selected an associate who will work with him or take his place in case he should be out of the city. Divisions are to be known by the initial of the chairman's last name; thus Mr. Agrell's division will be "A." Mr. Gochbauer's is "G." Mr. Marston's "M." and Mr. Wettengel's, division "W." Associates are: Division A, Fred Schilintz; G, T. E. Orison; M, R. E. Carncross; W, the Rev. J. L. Menzner.

Selection of five captains for each division will be the next task. This work was begun at a meeting of division heads and associates with Adam C. Remley, associate general chairman, presiding. H. W. Russell, chairman of the membership committee, George F. Werner, general secretary, C. L. Boynton, activities secretary, and A. P. Jensen, physical director, also were present.

All captains are to be chosen by Thursday, so they can meet on Friday of this week to select the names of workers for their teams. The entire campaign organization is to be completed and every worker signed by Wednesday, Sept. 24.

Monday, Sept. 29, is the date set for the opening banquet of the campaign. The goal will be a minimum of 1,400 members. The present enrollment is 1,282.

Names of nine applicants for the position on the fire department, now vacant, will be certified by the Appleton fire and police commission to Chief George P. McGillan, according to action taken by the board Tuesday evening.

In making his selection of a fireman, Chief McGillan will be guided by the following weights: One-third for the written examination, one-third for physical qualifications and one-third for general qualifications.

The man chosen for the vacancy will have to submit to a medical examination and, if the examination is favorable, will serve six months on probation before he becomes a full fledged member of the force.

At the meeting of the commission Tuesday evening was made relative to placarding of saloon windows in such a manner as to conceal the interior, which is contrary to law. The bills and posters will have to be removed if proprietors of the establishments wish to avoid arrest, it was agreed.

LETTER FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO BETTY (LADY CARNOVAN), CONTINUED

"The fact remains, my dear sister," said Leslie in a nasty but decisive manner, "that Karl did give them to me, and unless he wishes me to return them to you, I should feel as though I were slapping him in the face should I do it."

I never knew that Leslie had so much spirit. She must have gained something in her marriage with John Prescott, who, by the way, did not come with her to meet us; neither did Leslie bring her adopted baby.

Did you ever know anything so ridiculous as a young and healthy woman, in the first years of her marriage adopting a baby? She is certain to have some of her own, and there will always be a difference between them. I said as much to Leslie, and she politely told me I didn't know what I was talking about.

I rather resent this adopted child in Leslie's family, but dad and mother seem to think it is wonderful, and have poured out all their old-fashioned, grandfatherly and grandmotherly love upon it. Mother is quite disconcerted that Leslie didn't bring the child with her.

I have quite decided that my marriage will take place the first Wednesday in June, which is, as you know, only about a month distant. Karl has not seemed as happy since he returned as he did in England. I am not at all jealous of my sister, for I can hold and keep my own at all times, yet I am not unaware that Leslie was Karl's first love, and that that love lasted from the time they were children through the years until she married—and after. I do not disguise from myself, either, that I am entirely different from my sister, who, if she could have loved Karl, would probably have made him much happier than I shall, for they both have the same romantic and sentimental ideas.

But I know one thing—I shall be better for Karl. I shall make something of him besides a dreamer. I'm going to be a leader of society in Pittsburgh. I can see you smile, Betty, for after being a member of the smartest set in London, to be a leader of society in Pittsburgh means nothing except that one is a leader of something, you know.

I do not intend to stay in Pittsburgh long anyway, for I hope to persuade Karl to return to England to live.

By the way, Betty, I saw Edger-ton last evening. Tell Lady Roke, his sister, that he is looking especially well. Much to my surprise he came over to our table and after the most cursory greeting to me and to Karl, he became most cordial to Leslie, who seems had met him on his last visit to New York.

I don't quite understand, Betty, why my sister is always such a favorite with men. She never seems to be a flirtatious sort, and yet I am sure that she only has to look at one with those big brown eyes of hers to find him immediately groveling at her feet. The queer part of it is, she is clever enough to seem unconscious of it.

Lingerie Is Very Giddy And Costly

You May Have Silly Ideas About the Simplicity of Milady's Wardrobe—Reward!

Paris cables that "La Garconne," the bachelor girl type prevails. We immediately think of tailored, darkly swathed girls, sporting high-necked, short-sleeved, English broadcloth, low heeled oxford, dark stockings, and many masculine buttons. And we are apt to surmise that the lingerie worn with such a costume is in keeping, and is plain, and serviceable and boyish.

But Paris and women are not consistent. Red stepins, and bloomers are to be worn beneath the chic black suit. Pink silk voile, trimmed with black lace, ochre lace edging black georgette combinations, yellow lingerie with black lace, and even red embroidery are flaunted. In fact, if you close your eyes and conjure up all the impossible and impractical materials and color combinations to be used for milady's lingerie, you will see everything when you open them again to peer anxiously into the fashion window, hoping that you will not miss anything.

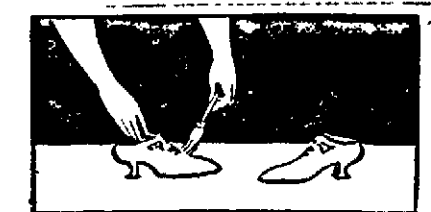

Due to the fact that skirts are 10 to 15 inches from the floor and often have long slits in the side, hosiery becomes more and more conspicuous. Nude and flesh colored hose are ancient now. And so, lace inserts and head madallions appear worked into the newest shades in stockings. And many and many a gaudy bead decoration on a pair of pretty ankles (they must be slender or woe to the owner!) will be the cynosure of every eye this winter.

NEW PAJAMA STYLES

When La Garconne discards her work clothes for the day, she dons crazy affairs—silk pajamas, with gingham checks for trimming, or black satin with much elaborate embroidery or headwork. Perhaps, (and this most unlikely) the lady is economical. In that case, she bravely makes the best of her poverty and appears in silk pongee, edged with black or colored piping. Sometimes she discards the masculine pose alto gether, and reveals in an extremely feminine blue nightgown of French voile with plumed roses dotting the neckline or hem.

Father Signifies Approval Of Footlights For Beauties

Suppose you had two very beautiful daughters—thousands of people have them—

And the question were to arise whether they should go to college or upon the stage—

There would arise immediately a dozen questions: What about too much discussed temptations? What about the much discussed stage morals?—But most people know them by heart.

Edwin Milton Royle, prominent dramatist, author of "The Squaw Man," "Her Way Out," and many others, a dyed-in-the-wool theatrical man, has two very beautiful daughters.

Yet he let them go on the stage—encouraged a stage career, in fact. Why?

Herewith he answers the question in a signed article on the stage as a career, reaching conclusions reached after years of first hand observation.

BY EDWIN MILTON ROYLE
(Dramatist and Prominent Theatrical Man.)

I believe that every woman should know how to do something the world wants done that she may be as free as possible from possible vicissitudes; that she may be independent of men and sex.

Now, as to the stage? Have we changed our attitude toward it? It wasn't long ago when one mentioned either apologetically or with a gesture of bravado that a stage career was being undertaken—with the opposition of both parents and friends, of course.

Has that attitude become provincialized although still held by countless thousands? So many popular notions have been kicked upstairs within the last few years, though the tradition is fondly nursed by the provincial.

Let's tackle a few of these notions: Stage environment? What about it? It is none too good. But what environment is insured against temptation?

A great city may exercise less restraint than a country town, but there are many who will challenge the comparative per capita morals. The small town will not give you temptation insurance, nor will the city. The small town might restrain because gossip travels so easily.

But this stage environment? In spots and places it is shocking! But does the environment of the preacher protect him? It would seem not as we glance through the newspapers.

The fact is that preacher and actor are shining marks for publicity. Another thing almost every other unfortunate woman ever arrested claims to be an actress whether she is or not. Poor thing, she is unconsciously paying tribute to the woman with a stage calling.

She would pose in this little moment as an actress. The poor thing grasps at that which mentally lures. And this for those who would seek the stage because it offers freedom from restraint: Will not last long.

WOMAN'S SECRET CHARM

In perfect health lies the secret of woman's charm which makes her radiate cheer and happiness wherever she goes. No one enjoys listening to the aches, pains and woes of an ailing, nervous irritable woman, and her condition is plainly stamped upon every feature. The most effective remedy for woman's ailments ever discovered has proved to be Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women are soon restored to health by its use and acquire the charm that health alone can give.

Disipation is the quickest and surest end of the most promising career.

The stage is an exacting life.

I could fill columns with the disadvantages, hardships, disillusionments and dangers. But is any career without them? It presupposes talent, personality, magnetism and they, in turn, presuppose vitality and health. It is no sinecure.

The career of the woman is the home, they say. But is that career free from trials, tribulations and disaster? I need not refer you to the daily divorce lists and domestic tragedies. Does the stage provide more? As I have said I believe every woman should be as free as humanly possible from men and sex.

The balance, it would seem, is about even. The stage produces many Maud Adams—a woman who gave all her energies to her art. She might have been a social idol, but she spurned the most flattering invitations and lived alone for her work.

My wife was a distinguished actress, known to the public as Selena Fetter. Our daughters, Josephine and Selena Royle, had the shadow of the footlights cast upon their youth.

Even when they were at school they began to plan for the future—college or stage? As usual, most of their friends chose college and advised it. They preferred the stage?

The younger was but 13 when she made up her mind. I wrote a play for children to encourage them. It was called "The Sin of Cinderella." I got a cast of players together and we rehearsed at our country home in Darien, Conn.

They played a number of Connecticut towns in the piece.

And we have no cause to regret their choice.

As for other girls these things should be borne in mind:

It is not an escape—it is a profession, a career.

It is not a place to fling restraint—it is a place to bring out what art and talent you may have.

It is not a playground—it is a work-ground.

In short—it is like most any other place in life.

Ancient Empire Styles Are Returning in Spite of Flappers' Influence

Definite directive influence very cleverly modernized, and not startling to the eye, takes its inspiration from masculine costumes of this period. Coats very straight, some of them with big facings and two or three capes like directorio postillions. Others entirely lined with fur with shawl or turn-down collars often fastened with a ribbon bow in front. Same hats for three piece, some boleros repose at back; hardly any models of hats or dresses without a line either in Empire waistline or a little higher sometimes only at back or front or suddenly going up on both sides in front, leaving a space of about 20 inches. This line is indicated by narrow galloons or bands of another material inserted under. It is never tightened like real Empire costume but is just an indication to accustom the eye to the new silhouette. It forms a yoke sometimes of a different fabric.

DECIDED EMPIRE LINE

Great quantity of afternoon dresses are in fall. Other dresses have simple straight collars slightly opened in front; nearly all have fastenings at the neck, or five or six buttons.

These dresses are short and straight but have plaits at the sides allowing freedom in walking without looking wide. Another feature accentuating folding as she overturned. The accident is believed to have been caused by an open sea valve or portable.

I want you to try it. I want you to see the luster that it adds to hair. I would not take a fortune for what it has done for mine.

I cannot tell you the secrets of its wizard-like results. They have never been told to me. But those results will amaze and delight you. Ask any toilet counter for Edna Wallace Hopper's Fruity Shampoo, and you'll get exactly what I use. The price is 60 cents. And your dealer will return your money if you think that any other shampoo comes within a mile of this. For your own sake, see what does.

Cardinals Smother Robins, 17-3, While Giants Break Even

Washington Takes Half Game Lead Over Idle Yanks by Defeating Cleveland, 6 to 2.

A new act in baseball's big revue promises to sustain interest until the final curtain of the season. "The dance of the turning worms" was presented Tuesday by a chorus which included the Cardinals, Reds, Phillies, and Athletics. The Browns and Indians were also billed for the act but the former were delayed by rain and the latter missed their cue.

The Cardinals scored the biggest hit of the day by smothering Brooklyn under a 17 to 3 score which dragged the Robins another half game away from the Giants and nearer the Pirates.

Cincinnati collaborated by splitting a doubleheader with the Giants, losing the first game, 5 to 1, when the leaders bunched hits off Mays, and winning the second, 3 to 1.

"The lowly Phils" arose to divide a double bill with the Pirates. One big inning in which Cooper was touched for seven hits and six runs lost the first game, 6 to 5, for the Corsairs, who came back strongly to win the second, 13 to 7.

The Giants are still two and one half games ahead of the Pirates who are now only one game behind Brooklyn.

While the Yankees watched their rain at St. Louis, Washington took a half game lead in the race by beating Cleveland, 6 to 2. Coveleskie weakened in the eighth allowing five hits and five runs.

Eddie Rommel held Detroit to a 14 to 2 victory. Sheeley's threebase hits with bases filled in the first inning gave the White Sox a commanding lead which developed into an 8 to 4 victory.

The Cubs instituted a bit of movement in the submerged portions of the National league by winning twice from Boston by scores of 8 to 3, and 4 to 2, and going into fourth place. Jacobs held the Braves to five hits in the first contest.

Champ Fan Digs Up Big Leaguers

New York—Here is a traveling man with something new, baseball as a side line.

Jesse Hirsch, known from coast to coast as the "Beau Brummell" of the knights of the grip, is the individual. Whether playing the major league circuits or the tank towns, Hirsch always arranges his business so that he can take in the ball game during the afternoon.

During the past 10 years Hirsch, who doesn't get a penny out of his baseball efforts, won't even accept a season pass, has recommended at least a dozen ball players to major league clubs who have made good.

Long before Frankie Frisch joined the Giants, Hirsch had touted the now famous star. Joe Dugan was another player he tipped off, but Connie Mack had him tied up.

Hirsch, who is a college man, starring in athletics during his "Rah-Rah" days, naturally leans to the college player. However, a number of the players he has touted got their start on the sandlots.

A number of major league clubs have offered Hirsch a fancy salary to take up scouting, but he is content to do his baseball sleuthing merely for the love of the game.

Hirsch might have been a major league star himself had he cared to take up a professional career.

KAUKAUNA MEETS KITZ AND PFEIL

Rival Aggregations Will Fight to Decide Lead in Saturday Contest

Kaukauna Saturday afternoon will meet the strong Kitz and Pfeil team of Oshkosh for the third time this year on the Combined Locks diamond. The two teams are neck and neck in their race, each having defeated the other once, and it is expected that the play off will be a close affair. The Kaukauna tribe played a good game last Saturday, but the Oshkosh club was using four State leaguers. "Big Red" Ryan of Minneapolis, now under the ban of Judge Landis, was doing the murling for the Kresal tribe, and although Pocaan held that aggregation scoreless up to the sixth, the K and P's were too much for him.

In their first tilt, Les Smith out-pitched Hueryel. Pocaan will be used again in Saturday's contest, and as Kromer has found trouble in finding a catcher competent to work with "Squaw", he probably will take that post himself.

The contest is scheduled for 3:30 P. M.

Dempsey Would Have Hard Job With Wills

Negro Heavyweight Lacks Fighting Spark But Is Cagely and Great on Defensive Tactics.

New York—Rather than establishing Harry Wills as a superlatively great fighter the recent ruction at Mr. Boyle's spacious acreage reduced the good Senor Firpo to the unmistakable status of a bum.

Wills did well enough, all things considered. The punch with which he felled the Sheik of the Andes was a well-timed, solidly delivered right hander—as forceful and damaging a blow as any of the several with which Dempsey smothered Firpo a year ago.

Wills' drawback is that he is not a savage, instinctive fighter. Like Tommy Gibbons, he lacks a lust for blood. Had he been a better finisher, a "kill" he would have stowed Firpo away for the funeral dirge in the second round. For some unaccountable reason the negro hung back.

FIRPO LUCKIEST FIGHTER
This is typical of Wills in high moments of the drama. Some weeks ago he rattled the teeth of the tough Bartley Madden with a devastating punch. The Irishman was out on his feet. Another clout would have hung him on the ropes. But Wills declined to step in and deliver it.

Firpo is one of the luckiest blokes that ever drew on a pair of mittens. By sheer chance he happened to catch Dempsey with a wild, swinging right hand and the champion did a beautiful standing, sitting down out of the ring. If Firpo had missed that punch—and it was wild and wide enough to miss a locomotive—he would have passed out of the picture then and there.

But the punch happened to land and the memory of it remained long after his subsequent knockout at the hands of Dempsey had been forgotten. On the strength of that one punch he was brought back to America to fight Wills. Promoter Rickard was confident Firpo would win, and thus qualify for another test with the champion.

Wills showed the Argentinian up completely, just as many close followers of the sport predicted. Firpo is merely a giant with a powerful right hand which is effective only when an opposing chin happens to run against it. They are saying he looked worse against Wills than he did against Dempsey. This is because the fight lasted longer, and it was possible to detect all his crudities.

WILLS CAN HOLD DEMPSEY
What Wills would do against Dempsey is a question. It's a clinch he wouldn't knock him out. It is no certainty that he would outpoint him either. On the other hand, Dempsey would have his troubles KNOCKING WILLS OUT.

The Negro is no dumb egg. Dempsey has never met a man capable of punishing him at close quarters. Wills is that type of fighter. Dempsey might not thrive on body blows and repeated kidney thuddings. Wills is stronger than the champion, and is a better defensive fighter.

"I think Wills is good enough to hold Dempsey off and outpoint him in twelve rounds," remarked Jack Britton, former welterweight champion to the writer. "I think, too, it would be a terrible fight to watch."

QUESTIONS

1. Is there any particular system used by the umpires in determining what is an infield fly?—B. C. G.

2. If the umpire, with first and second base occupied, and only one out, declares a fly ball an infield fly only to have the left fielder handle the ball, and muff it does the original ruling of infield fly which automatically retired the batsman stand?—C. V. B.

3. Baserunner interferes with fielder in handling a ground ball. The umpire rules baserunner out. It was apparent that the interference was not intentional, the fielder being really at fault since in taking a step back he came into contact with the runner. Does an umpire in rendering a decision on an interference play give any consideration as to whether or not the interference is intentional?—D. M. T.

ANSWERS

1. Calling an infield fly is merely a matter of opinion or judgment on the part of the umpire. Any fly ball which the umpire believes can be handled by first, second and third occupied, immediately becomes an infield fly.

2. The original ruling stands. Once the umpire calls infield fly, the batsman is automatically retired. It makes no difference that the left fielder made the play on the fly and then muffed.

3. At no time can the umpire give any consideration to the intent on an interference play. The holder always has the right of way and it is up to the baserunner to avoid him. If the interference happens it must be called whether or not it was intentional.

SIXTEEN SURVIVE IN PRO GOLF MEET

Interest Increases When Barnes Comes Back to Beat Mike Brady

French Lick, Ind.—Reduced to 16 players, the second 36-hole matches of the professional golf championship proceeded Wednesday over the course at French Lick with some of the original favorites missing as the result of Tuesday's play. But the survivors included the defending champion, Gene Sarazen of New York in the lower half and the British champion, Walter Hagen, another resident of the metropolis.

Interest in the play Wednesday was more intense as a result of the remarkable 69-hole contest which closed Tuesday's golfing when Jim Barnes, formerly national champion, after trailing all day, finally overcame Mike Brady by scoring an unusual 33 on the third extra hole. Barnes Wednesday played Eddie Torney of Philadelphia who Tuesday eliminated Jack Hutchison of Chicago, formerly British open champion, 4 and 3. The present title holder, Sarazen, who survived by defeating Fred McLeod of Washington, 5 and 4, had as his opponent Wednesday Larry Nabholz of Lima, who downed Jack Forrester of New York by two holes in the first round.

MARQUETTE GRID SQUAD WILL FACE LOMBARD, SEPT. 27

Hilltop Candidates Hit Stiff Pace to Prepare for Opening Game

Lake Beach—With only ten training days remaining before the first game of the season, the Marquette university football squad is being put through a stiff pace at training camp here, to be in shape to meet Lombard college at Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 27.

Although this game is an informal affair and no score will be recorded, Coach Frank J. Murray, is working to have his men in condition that he may determine the season's prospects.

The locals will make their official bow at Milwaukee, Oct. 4, against St. Mary's college of Winona.

Coach Murray will have three holes to fill this season, one at quarterback, one at guard and the other at center. Otherwise the team will lack much the same as the outfit which went through last season's heavy schedule.

The players will not have long to work before the heavy part of the season's schedule is reached. The Navy at Annapolis, is scheduled for Oct. 11 and from that time on Creighton university, Boston college, the University of Vermont and the University of North Dakota are expected to furnish plenty of opposition for one season.

Lost To Team

FLOYD DORSEY

Kenosha—Marquette's two-year undefeated Golden Avalanche eleven is in mourning. It has lost the services of Floyd Dorsey, one of its most dependable linemen, who died just before the team left for training camp.

Dorsey was stricken with appendicitis and died after an operation. His death will be keenly felt by the Marquette squad, which will wear mourning bands.

Dorsey played tackle or guard equally well and was counted on heavily by Coach Murray.

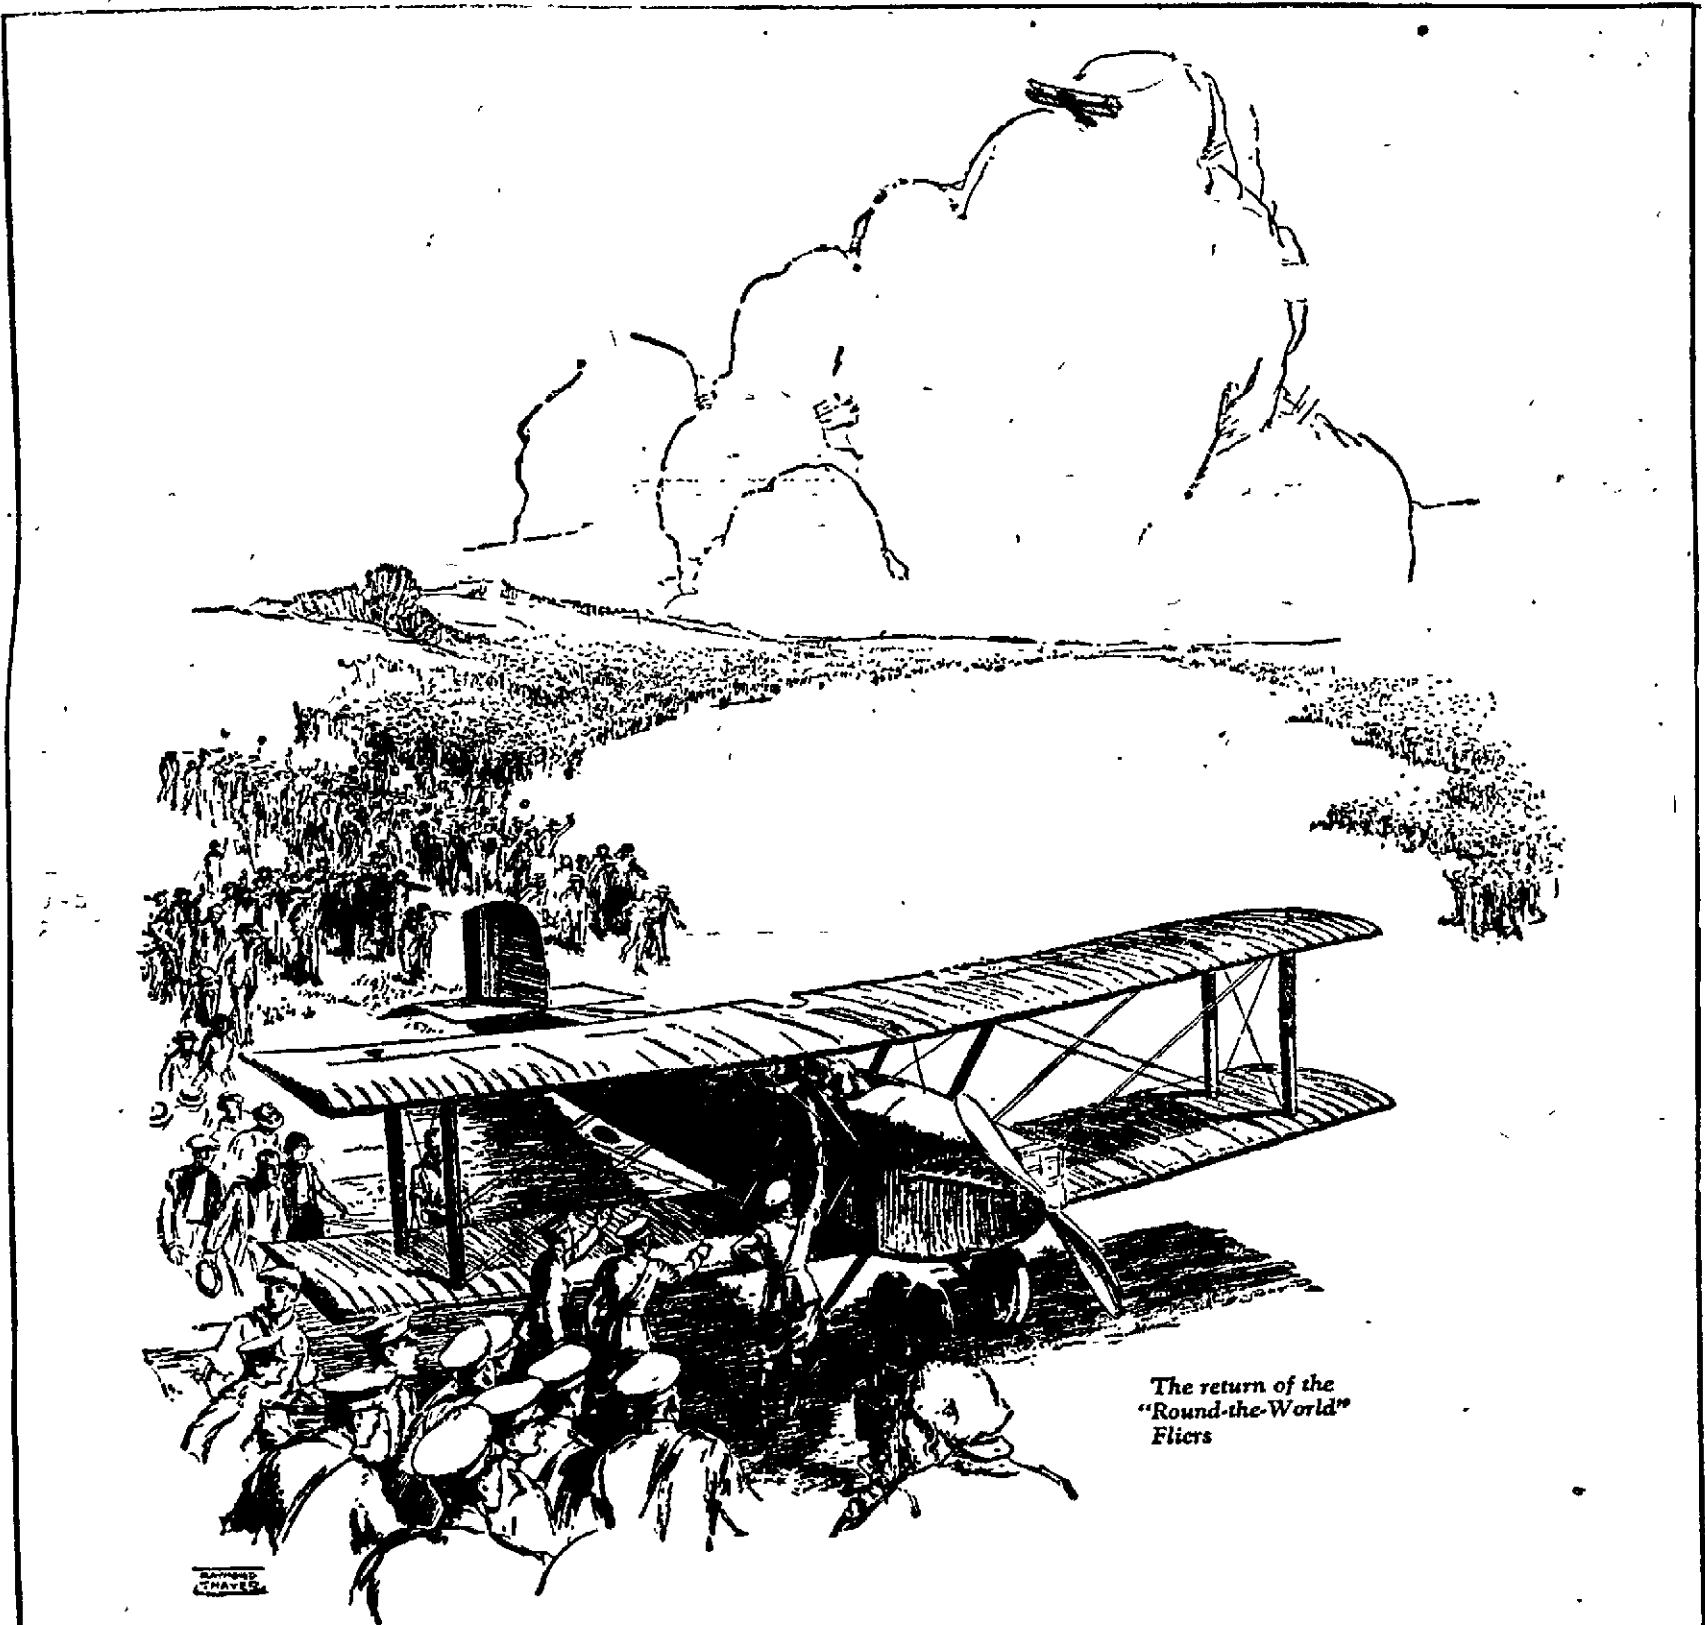

APPLETON MEETS OSHKOSH IN LAST GAMES OF SEASON

Papermakers Have Last Chance to Nose Green Bay Out of Second Place

Appleton is scheduled to make its last appearance of the season on a State league diamond Sunday afternoon at Oshkosh when the Papermakers clash with the Ithig Washers in a doubleheader. One of the games is the last on the schedule while the other was postponed from earlier in the season because of rain.

While the Smith tribe is out of the running as far as the pennant is concerned, there still is a chance to nose Green Bay out of second place. To do this the Papermakers would have to win both tilts Sunday, and the Falls would have to take their game with the Baymen, which they are hoped to accomplish. If the Twin City tribe defeats Green Bay and the Papermakers and Washers split their double header, an extra game will be necessary to decide who holds second place, as Green Bay and Appleton then would be tied.

AMERICAN POLO TEAM WILL SPLIT IN NEXT BATTLES

Argentine Stars on British Aggregation Which Bowed to Yanks

By Associated Press
New York—American and British polo players who participated in the series for the international challenge cup retained by the United States, will split up and play on different quarters in the games for the open championship and for the Monte Waterbury, which will be contested this month.

Louis Lacey, Argentine, who started at back for Great Britain in the two games will appear Thursday at International field against the Mid-west club of Los Angeles, holders of the junior title, in a contest which will replace the third of the series scheduled between the American big four and England, which will now not be played.

The Argentine captain of the British team covered himself with glory in the second and final game of the international series which America won Tuesday by a score of 14 to 5. The fact that the English displayed a much more stubborn quality of resistance and far better team play than the score indicated, was due largely to Lacey's spectacular use of his pony and mallet on defense and to his unerring aim and strong hitting in getting the ball out of danger and on its way into scoring territory.

Tommy Hitchcock, who scored five of the American goals, carried the brunt of the American offense and thrilled the crowd with his usual fearless horsemanship and long hitting. J. Watson Webb, southpaw No. 1 who was opposed by Lacey, engaged in an afternoon's duet with the brilliant Argentine and came out with an honorable record.

The Prince of Wales witnessed the contest and participated in the ceremony after the game when the challenge cup was presented to the big four by Major General Bullard.

Meeting Called When Registration Is Completed to Organize Pinsmashers

Members of the Aid association for Lutherans who intend to participate in the bowling tournaments the coming winter can now register their names with W. C. Bell, clubroom manager. As soon as the registration is completed a meeting will be called to organize leagues for the coming season.

It is planned to organize a league for men and another for women not later than Oct. 1, if possible. Last year the men's league was composed of ten teams of five members each.

The bowling alleys have been newly fitted up and were used Monday evening for the first time this season.

ROD AND REEL

"Q. AND A."
Q. I do a lot of fishing around the upper Wolf river and have been using live bait such as minnows, frogs, etc. Can you give me a little information as to what artificial lures to use, also what kind of a reel and rod to get as I want to take up bait casting?—G. C. N.

A—There is any number of artificial lures that will bring home the bacon in the waters of the Wolf and a few of these are: baby crab wiggler, Shakespeare spinner with red fly attached, Wilson wobbler, Creek Club Pike, minnow, etc. Shakespeare's Marhoff reel, level winder, and a five foot split bamboo rod will make an ideal outfit for bait tossing. Select a few good spinners and some daisy swivel sinkers to attach to spoons to make enough weight to cast properly.

Q—How can I keep frogs alive for use in bait casting and what is the best way to carry them to the stream?—Bill C.

A—Frogs which keep quite a while in water in which a little oil or grass is placed and a chip or two of wood. In carrying to the stream there is nothing that can equal a small sack that has been washed thoroughly to remove the salt and then dampened occasionally to keep the little "kickers" alive.

DRY CHIEF ASKS DAVIS FOR STAND

By Associated Press
Clinton, Mo.—H. P. Faris of Clinton, Mo., prohibition party candidate for president in a telegram and letter called upon John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, to state publicly whether he was "wet or dry."

"You will recall," the letter to Mr. Davis, said, "that I issued an open letter to you through the public press asking you to state whether you and your party were wet or dry and intended that any question should be asked about enforcing the law, but answered that you would have to give an oath to enforce the same, but that was not the question. Every villager of an officer who winks at the non-enforcement of the eighteenth

Puts Hometown On Map

STANLEY HARRIS

Maybe you never heard of Fort Jervis, Pa. Neither did we. Until the other day, when some relentless historian disclosed the little Pennsylvania hamlet as the birthplace of Stanley Harris, sensational kid manager of the Washington Senators, likely winners of the American League championship.

Harris was born there 28 years ago. He has been with Washington since 1919. Buffalo had him the year before. Prior to that he was with Reading, Norfolk, Muskegon and Scranton.

Also he had brief trials with Detroit and Pittsburgh, getting his start with the Pirates in 1915. He's five feet nine inches, weighs 160, bats and throws right-handed and is one of the most popular men in baseball.

Classic Plays On Gridiron

Alert Brain and Lion's Heart Enable Martineau to Save Day for Minnesota in Badger Game

By W. H. SPAULDING
University of Minnesota Coach

MINNESOTA and Wisconsin were playing a standoff game in the mud when the break came that produced one of the greatest plays I have ever seen on a football field. Martineau, Minnesota's elusive fullback, had punted far to the left and nearly out of bounds. So nearly, in fact, that Eklund, Minnesota left end, thought that Rolfe Williams, Wisconsin back, had stepped out of bounds in picking up the ball and allowed him to get away. Williams had a clear field, and three interferers to take out Martineau, the only man blocking the path to a touch-down. And the score at the time was 0-0.

Things looked blue for Minnesota, as Williams was running close to his interference and there seemed to be no chance for Martineau to sift through. Nor did it seem possible for him to go around the mass, for meantime Williams could use any one of his three interferers as a dodging post.

Down the field swept the flying Badgers. Martineau was moving out to meet them. They were about to brush him aside. And then—he left his feet. Not around or through the interference, did Martineau attempt to go, but over the top. And down came Williams, an astonished man, 15 yards from a touch-down.

No one expected Martineau to make that play. Less great players would have been swept aside. But Martineau had the courage and resourcefulness to face the obstacle that was apparently unsurmountable—and conquer. And there's just the difference between greatness and mediocrity, in football or out. The heart for greatness recognizes no defeat.

White Sox Slump Big Surprise

Chicago—What's the matter with the Chicago White Sox? That seems to be one of the big questions of the American League campaign. The Sox just naturally have upset the dope by trailing along in last place.

In team batting the club ranks about on a par with Detroit. It has six men hitting over .300, five of them being regulars. They are Collins, Falk, Sheely, Mostil and Hooper. Only two of the seven "every-day" players, namely Barrett and Kamm, are clouting below the elite division. Archdeon is the sixth man, hitting above .300, though not a regular.

This year, however, Chicago boasts one of the poorest fielding teams in the club's history. It has made more errors than any other outfit in the majors. It has compiled about 40 more miscues to date than have the Yankees, and it has done it on fewer chances, too.

A fairly good hitting club, Chicago's prowess with the stick has been offset by almost scandalous fielding and a failure of the pitching staff to live up to expectations.

CITY TWILIGHT LEAGUERS PLAN WINTER PROGRAM

Meeting Called For Thursday Night to Decide on Indoor Baseball Loop

Twilight baseball took a prominent place among summer sports in this city during the present season, and in addition to the two leagues, the City and Lark organizations, there were a number of independent wheels on the field which were unable to get in. According to present plans this activity will be carried on through the winter also. A meeting has been called for 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. for members of the City Twilight league, at which they will adopt plans for next season and also discuss the question of an indoor baseball league intended to keep the loop going over winter. The City league includes the Knights of Pythias, Retail Footfitters, Barbers and Post-Crescent printers.

Members of the Lark league also are discussing similar plans, and it is probable that they will organize for the winter in the near future. The various leagues and independent organizations started rather late this year and it is their intention to get off early next year in order to play on a more extensive schedule. Every team in both leagues was going strong when the season ended several weeks ago and it looks like a close race for next year if the clubs succeed in keeping their men active during the winter.

Only Three Veterans Gone From Illinois

Urbana, Ill.—Illinois field is again alive with football players, candidates for the University of Illinois football team.

Coach Bob Zuppke has 60 men out for drill.

Scanning the list of names shows 14 of the 19 Illinois letter men of last season. Only 11 of the regulars who helped the Illinois tie for the Big Ten title will be missing. They are Jim McMillen, guard; Viv Green, center, and Ted Richards, end.

With the return of Captain Frank E. Rokusek and Stub Muhl, Richard's loss will not be as keenly felt as that of the other two. Muhl played the wing position nearly as much as did Richards and will probably succeed him.

C. E. Kassel and Shields of last year's freshmen squad are the most promising of the other candidates. Mush Crawford and Dick Hall, tackles, and Roy Miller, guard, are the other regular linemen who are back. Chuck Brown, a regular until he hurt his ankle in the Iowa game last fall, L. P. Slininger, L. J. Umms and G. J. Roberts, who earned their letters, will be back to fill in the line. Bernie Shively was a member of last year's freshmen squad and looks best to fill McMillen's place.

The Illinois will have their entire backfield of last year intact. Harry Hall, quarterback; Earl Britton, fullback, and Harold Grange and Walne McIlwain, halfbacks. Red Grange has been behaving like in his home town, Wheaton, Ill., all summer and reports that he is in the best of condition. He will be watched by thousands—all wondering as to whether or not he can repeat his sensational record of last year.

GROWING MORALITY IN U. S. LAUDED BY GERMAN

Berlin—Alice Solomon, for many years identified with social work in Germany, believes that the American people have solved the problems of alcohol and dancing in a way that will make for a better generation.

Writing of her recent experiences in America, Miss Solomon expresses the belief that, while in the big cities there are evasions of the prohibition laws, yet, one the whole, the country is growing "dry" and that the number of opponents of prohibition is constantly decreasing.

As for dancing, it is Miss Solomon's belief that the social workers have been able to provide such opportunities for young people to amuse themselves at dancing that the objectionable dance halls are being less and less frequented.

HUNTERS! Ask Yourself These Questions

Do you know the dates of the open season for the game you are going after?

Can you name the animals and birds that you are not permitted to kill?

What is the cost of a hunting license and where can it be obtained?

What are the bag limits? Are you allowed to ship your kill out of the state, or sell it locally?

All of the above questions are answered in a new 38 page Game Law booklet just issued by the government.

Every sportsman needs a copy of this booklet so that he may keep within the law. Send in your name and address with two cents in stamps for return postage.

HUNGARY RAISES BAN FROM AUTOS

Budapest, Hungary—Representatives of American automobile interests in Hungary received encouraging news recently with announcement that the Hungarian government had removed restrictions on the import of motor cars and many other articles which have virtually been prohibited for some years because of these regulations.

At present there are approximately 3,500 passenger cars in the country and about 600 motor trucks. The import restrictions raised also include automobile tires, linen and woolen goods, and many kinds of fruit and fish which may now be brought into Hungary, subject to the duties imposed by the new tariff law, the whole of which is to become effective in the autumn.

Sunday Dance Hall Law In County Is Something Like Nation's Dry Law

One of the peculiar features of county dance hall supervision is the apparent lack of enforcement of the county ban on Sunday night dancing. This county sought to play the role of a pioneer in stopping Sunday dancing, expecting that other county boards would follow the example by adopting similar clauses for their dance ordinances.

Not only has that expectation failed to materialize, but Sunday dancing seems to be as prevalent as it was before the county dance ordinance was adopted.

Terrace Garden inn, located in Winnebago-co, but drawing its patrons chiefly from Outagamie-co people, has never been affected by the Outagamie-co ordinance, and hence its Sunday dances have not been interfered with.

Sunday dances are being held quite regularly at Starners hall in Apple Creek under the claim that the dances are private and therefore do not come within the scope of the county ordinance. An athletic club has been organized here, and the dances are said to be conducted by the organization for its own members and their friends.

The manager admits that memberships may be purchased at the door. The hall is not licensed and no permits are obtained for the holding of any dances whatever.

Rainbow Gardens, after being idle for a short time on Sunday evenings, is again operating regularly on Sundays, the attitude of the management being that the dances are private. Invitations are sent out to regular customers, and the dancers are admitted on the strength of the invitations. No charge is made for dancing, but in lieu of that, the management accepts a cover charge for the tables.

Several other dance halls and grills in the county are said to be operating Sundays on the same principle. The manager of Valley Queen pavilion, Twelve Corners, says no dancing is held there on Sundays, but that the hall has roller skating on those days.

Private clubs and lodges, as well as Jewish society, have been conducting Sunday dances regularly.

The proprietor of a dance at Five Corners recently was arrested as a result of a dance held there on a Sunday night. It was found he had no license on the hall at all and was fined on that count.

Sunday dancing, as it exists in the county, has aroused a discussion as to whether the dance hall ordinance shall be enforced to the letter or whether the Sunday dance clause of the ordinance shall be repealed, according to John A. Lonsdorf, district attorney.

The county board of supervisors at its November session will be asked to decide on the matter.

A Green Bay man also was arrested in the raid but was discharged on evidence that he was not intoxicated and had just entered the house.

COLLEGE MEN HEAD GOLD RUSH OF '49, EXPERT SAYS

"The pioneer of western pioneers was no rude son of toil, but a man of thought, trained amid arts and letters."—F. Parkman.

This adequately and eloquently describes the pioneer who blazed the trail to the West and made possible the building up of this great nation. These men, many of them college graduates, who left their homes in the East when gold was discovered in California in 1849 and braved the dangers of the prairie with its desert sands and Indians to build up a new country, are worthy of consideration.

A few of them have been made famous by the mad rush of those early days remain unsung save in the most sensational literature. It was to honor these and present that period in its true colors that Vitaphone pictured "Pioneer Trails," a David Smith production, which will be shown at the New Bijou Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Every detail of the picture was given careful consideration by a staff of experts, many of whom had either crossed the plains in those early days or were the descendants of pioneers. To them the story was a page of family history, and they were anxious to see it reproduced on the screen as accurately as human hands and minds could recreate events.

The cast includes such popular players as Cullen Landis, Alice Cullen and Otis Harlan.

He told the Appleton camp that many of the members of his camp were still in the service of the United States, and were stationed at Hawaii, Alaska, the Philippines and in Panama. LAST HIGHWAY CENSUS IS TAKEN AT KIMBERLY

The last highway traffic census of the year is being taken Wednesday under the direction of the county highway department. All vehicles traveling over highway 15 at Kimberly station between the hours of 6 o'clock in the morning and 11 o'clock at night are being counted. The count is being made by Edward DeYoung.

Sentence Is Given Couple On Two Counts

Hjalmar W. Johnson of Kaukauna and Miss Eva M. Martelle of Green Bay took a double sentence by Justice Bishop of Zion City a few days ago. The couple was in great haste to reach Waukegan, the Illinois honey-mooners' haven, but did not take into consideration that 15 miles an hour in Zion City means exactly 15 miles. Their quest was halted temporarily by a motorcop, but they were allowed to continue. They returned to Zion City later with a marriage license to be sentenced by the judge for life on the one count and to be fined on the speeding charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rietz, Miss Olive Rietz and Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Wickert autoed to Madison on Sunday.
